Bobby's mother

"A Little Boy"
 I hate to see him grow,
 I love him so,
 Just as he is.

I love his little dirty face,
 His merry laughter round the place,
 I love to hear him shout with glee,
 When he has played a trick on me.
 I love to kiss his tears away,
 When he has hurt himself, at play.
 And oh! I love his dreamy eyes,
 That seem so sweet, and yet so wise.
 And when I've tucked him in his bed,
 And he, his evening prayers, has said,
 I love to hold his chubby hand,
 As he starts off, for Slumberland.
 And when I've smoothed his towseled hair,
 I linger just a moment there,
 To wonder how a little boy,
 Can bring a saddened heart, such joy.

I hate to see him grow,
 I love him so,
 Just as he is.
